WELCOME to RSA® CONFERENCE 2005!

The buzz is growing – and so is our excitement – as we gear up for the 14th annual RSA® Conference!

Our record attendance and overall success in 2004 demonstrate how security issues are "top of mind" in today's international business arena.

Over 97% of attendees polled in 2004 said they found the Conference valuable to their jobs – a statistic that illustrates why the RSA Conference is the world's leading industry forum for information security professionals.

We're passionate about continually improving the quality of the Conference for you. In 2005, the RSA Conference will feature 16 unique educational tracks offering the latest-breaking information, tips and skills to advance your career. What's more, our 2005 Expo will be our best ever – with more than 250 exhibitors expected. At the Expo, you'll learn about the newest solutions from the biggest companies as well as the hottest startups and most far-seeing venture capitalists.

Don't pass up this unparalleled opportunity to expand your professional horizons and network with over 10,000 business people, analysts, academics, government officials, policy makers and application developers. It's the one information security event you can't afford to miss! Visit www.rsaconference.com for the latest information or to register.

I look forward to seeing you at the Conference in February!

Sincerely,

Sandra Toms LaPedis
Vice President and General Manager

CONFERENCE OVERVIEW

The RSA® Conference, the most prestigious information security event of the year, is a "must attend" event for organizations that deploy, develop or investigate data security or cryptography products. The 14th annual RSA Conference will deliver more learning, networking and product demonstrations than any other security gathering. You will meet the best and the brightest in the information security industry, both decision makers and technology luminaries.

THE CODES OF PROHIBITION

Every year, the RSA Conference is built around a different historical theme, which highlights a significant use or misuse of information security. Our theme for 2005 is "The Codes of Prohibition."

In Prohibition-era America, vast bootlegger syndicates smuggled in spirits from the Pacific and Atlantic. Their offshore fleets used sophisticated codes and ciphers to encrypt radio transmissions. To combat the problem, the Coast Guard called in Elizebeth Smith Friedman and her team of federal cryptanalysts to decipher messages seized in a 1931 New Orleans raid. In the end, the plaintext decryptions led a grand jury to indict 35 rumrunners; six bosses and smugglers were convicted and sentenced to prison on federal conspiracy charges. The culture of mobsters and speakeasies was dealt a serious blow.

Code making and breaking continue to play a crucial role in international intelligence gathering, law enforcement and global trade. Join us at RSA Conference 2005 and learn new ways to protect your enterprise from today's information security hoodlums, or secure your application from a new breed of hacker-bootleggers!

The Conference and Expo – All in One Place!

We're moving all of the educational track sessions and the Expo to the South Hall of the Moscone Center – now everything will be located in one building!

We believe this move will make it easier for attendees to visit the Expo or relax in the Wireless area between sessions.

Get Connected.

Get more than a glamorous GUI.

Screen scrapers don't deliver. GUI/400™ from SEAGULL does.

Screen scrapers are clumsy. They guess wrong when trying to convert a green screen. They format applications inconsistently. They slow down your AS/400 applications and can't integrate with other desktop apps. You can't customize them or use them to access intranets or the Internet. In short, they're purely a cosmetic makeover.

GUI/400™ delivers true GUI functionality—at rocket speed. Its Application Development Kit (ADK) automatically collects your AS/400 apps' green screens and generates "best guess" graphical panels.

From there, developers have complete control over GUI design. You can reengineer workflows, incorporate business graphics and customize all aspects of your GUI. The ADK is a point-and-click development environment that makes GUI building easy and fun. When you're done, you can deliver a new application to end users—with no changes to the AS/400 app.

Give your AS/400® applications a whole new lease on life with GUI/400™ and J Walk™ from SEAGULL. They go way beyond cosmetic screen scrapers. Start now with GUI/400™. It gives AS/400 users seamless integration with other desktop apps like e-mail, word processing and spreadsheets. It installs fast. It is easily customizable. It runs on Windows® and OS/2®. When you're ready for Java,™ get J Walk!™ It adds powerful, Java-based Web-enabling capabilities, so you can get the connectivity and cost savings of intranets and the Internet—plus JVM portability. Together, GUI/400™ and J Walk™ propel your AS/400 a giant step along the network-centric client/server continuum—right now, at a fraction of the cost (and none of the agony) of major reconstructive surgery. GUI/400™ and J Walk™ from SEAGULL: Your launchpad into a network-centric future.

OVERVIEW

RSA® Conference 2004 is the most prestigious information security event of the year, offering more cutting-edge learning, more networking and more career growth opportunities than any other industry event. It is the must-attend event for organizations that deploy, develop or investigate data security or cryptography products.

The Conference consists of four main components: General Sessions, Exposition, Class Tracks and Tutorials. The General Sessions will bring everyone together for special keynote addresses, expert panels and discussions of general interest. Tutorials will provide developer and enterprise security basics. Fifteen simultaneous class tracks will showcase a wide variety of workshops, seminars and talks, offering an unparalleled catalog of 200 classes that cover the very latest trends, challenges and technologies.

KEYNOTES

The RSA Conference 2004 will offer the most distinguished roster of information security experts ever assembled. These visionary leaders and thinkers will conduct focused keynote presentations, offering perspectives on trends, challenges and potential solutions to technological and other challenges. No other industry forum offers such breadth and depth of learning and expertise.

WELCOME RECEPTION*

Don't miss our 2004 Welcome & Expo Reception, Tuesday, February 24 from 6-8 p.m. at the Moscone Center! This year's Reception will feature an entertaining program of events that will make you feel right at home. The Reception will familiarize you with all the learning, networking and career-enhancing activities you will enjoy at the Conference and Exposition. And, it will be a prime opportunity to network with colleagues and industry luminaries alike.

CRYPTOGRAPHERS' GALA*: THE FORBIDDEN CITY

After Beijing was named the capital of China in 1421, a remarkable group of imperial buildings came to be known as the Forbidden City. This architectural and cultural achievement remains unmatched to this day. Join us on Thursday night, February 26, from 7 – 11 p.m. to experience "The Forbidden City", the RSA Conference 2004 Gala.

At this signature event, immerse yourself in the mystery, genius and intrigue of ancient China, an era that saw many cryptological breakthroughs like those of Ch'in Chiu-Shao and others. The Conference Gala will recapture the elegant tastes and sights of this glittering period of Chinese history. Join us to celebrate the groundbreaking achievements of cryptographers down through the ages!

HELP US REALIZE THE VISION OF "EDUCATION FOR ALL".

Dear John Q. Sample,

I'm writing to you today because you're a valued Save the Children supporter whom I believe can help us meet a vitally important goal: to bring about a world in which all children and adults have access to quality basic education.

This ambitious goal is one that we share with the 1990 United Nations Conference, "Education for All." And, with over one billion children and adults in developing countries suffering the ill-effects of poor or no education, it won't be an easy goal to achieve. That's why we desperately need your help. Please consider a special gift to our Strong Beginnings education program. Your contribution will represent life's blood for a program that challenges bright young minds and teaches young adults and adults alike crucial life-enhancing skills they can pass on to future generations.

Your gift to Strong Beginnings can help a number of crucial projects and activities, including:

- the establishment of schools in remote communities that have not had access to any education for their children
- preschool activities to help young children prepare for the challenges of elementary school
- purchase schoolbooks and other supplies and materials that are often still cost-prohibitive for many families
- training and capacity building of local teachers working in primary schools and preschool programs
- literacy classes that include parent education, child care and economic activities.

Strong Beginnings projects work to build community support for education and encourage cost sharing in order to keep the activities progressing and the community thriving.

Strong Beginnings has already developed a partnership with local community members and leaders in over 800 schools in rural Africa – at one-tenth the cost of government-sponsored schools – where student enrollment can be as low as 15%. The program supports networks of community preschools and literacy classes in the Middle East and Asia, as well as teacher training in Latin America and the Caribbean.

This is just a brief overview of this innovative, life-enhancing program. To learn more about how Strong Beginnings is making a difference in the lives of children and their families, please take a moment to read the enclosed brochure. Then send a special contribution to help us work toward "education for all" throughout the world.

Because of programs like Strong Beginnings, children are being given hope for a brighter future. With your help, we can help break the vicious cycle of illiteracy and poverty that traps children and their families, generation after generation. So, please, make a difference. Return the enclosed reply card with your contribution without delay.

On behalf of children everywhere,

Charles MacCormack

Charles MacCormack
President

P.S. We're counting on loyal supporters like you to help the Strong Beginnings education program succeed for children and their families everywhere. It's a wonderful way to put caring into action. Please respond with a generous gift today.
