

Marv is a no nonsense business man, one of the most effective, efficient and affable COOs I've had the pleasure to work with, a solid business man with significant skills.

He a diverse personality, possesses a smart command of numbers and a super analytical ability that allows him to see opportunities and challenges that others may have missed. Marv has an excellent command of the English language and understands well the effectiveness of lean, clear communications when making his presentations or points; he is always well understood.

He is capable of working in typical, frenetic, startups as well as stepping into mature, already established companies, identifying strengths and weaknesses and being a significant likeable force in driving positive management change, impacting top line revenues, cutting costs and generating positive net change in net income.

He is also just a pleasure to have on the team, truly a great asset in all ways.
