PRINCIPAL

To Whom It May Concern:

While I was out for twelve weeks on Maternity Leave, I was fortunate enough to have Dan Myers act as my replacement. In the twelve weeks Dan spent at Amosland Elementary School, he taught Physical Education to all students in grades K-5.

Based on conversations with Dan, my principal and other classroom teachers, Dan quickly adjusted to the structure and responsibilities necessary for a creative arts teacher at the elementary level. I was able to check in throughout my leave and it was clear that Dan developed great rapport with both the students and faculty at Amosland. His confidence and enthusiasm were evident from day one and he proved to be a dedicated and reliable professional from the start.

On a daily basis, Dan kept me informed on lessons he was teaching. He planned excellent lessons that always included a variety of teaching styles and learning activities that were developmentally appropriate. Through his lessons, it was evident that Dan kept students actively engaged throughout the entire class. From looking at Dan's lesson plans and based on my experiences observing Dan, it was clear that he excelled at creating and adapting lesson plans to ensure a successful learning experience for all students.

Overall, Dan showed that he was an effective teacher who was able to provide students with a positive learning environment. After witnessing Dan's dedication and professionalism over the twelve weeks, I feel that he possesses all the necessary attributes to make him an excellent candidate for any teaching position he chooses to undertake. Any school district would be lucky to hire a candidate like Dan, who is clearly dedicated to the Physical Education profession.

Sincerely,

Jen Gavin
