Business Strategies

Employee Benefits

Regardless of how high or low the unemployment rate is, it's always difficult and expensive to replace a quality employee. Once you've found the best people, keeping them interested in your company and motivated to perform at peak levels is a big challenge. If employee retention is a concern of yours, a competitive benefits package is a must-have in today's labor market.

Key Person Insurance

One asset that is often overlooked is the human capital of the company. You can protect your business from loss of a key person by implementing a key person insurance plan. This insurance is designed to offer benefits that attract and retain key employees that have been critical to the success of your business as well as to protect the business financially.

Buy-Sell Planning

A Buy-Sell arrangement is an arrangement for the disposition of a business interest upon a specific triggering event such as an owner's death, disability, retirement, or other termination. Buy-sell arrangements should be considered in every closely held business. A well drafted and properly funded arrangement can protect the interests of the business owners and help facilitate the continuation of the business after the death, disability, or retirement of its current owners.
